Internetse Data Protection Policy

The personal data we collect will be used for the following purpose:

- To offer you a start-up web package for your newly created business

Our Legal basis for processing for the personal data:

- To market our services to you with our unique amazing value introductory service, which we believe will be beneficial to you in starting your new business.
- Part of our introductory offer is to provide free registration for a .co.uk domain, something that will help companies who need professional looking web and email services.

Any legitimate interests pursued by us:

- We hope you see the value in the service we can provide for your new company, and therefore become a valued customer of ours.

The Special categories of personal data concerned are:

- We collect publicly assessable information from UK Companies House website for newly created companies, whom are our target customers.

Consent: Is required for Internetse to process the personal data, but it must be explicitly given. By registering for this trial offer through our website form, you are consenting to this privacy notice and giving us permission to process your personal data specifically for the purpose identified.

Where we are asking you for sensitive personal data we will always tell you why and how the information will be used.

Withdraw consent: You may withdraw consent at any time by sending an email to dp@internetse.co.uk. Personal data obtained from Companies house is deleted mandatorily every 30 days from our systems. If you haven't registered through our website after receiving our postal offer you will not be contacted again about this or any other service offering.

Disclosure: Internetse will not pass on your personal data to third parties in any way. We do not share or sell any personal or company data.
